It is with great pleasure that we welcome Professor Ian Wilson on his third visit to Essex SRP.

Ian is the principal recorder professor at the Guildhall School of Music & Drama, the Head of Woodwind at Eton College and is the visiting recorder specialist at the North East of Scotland Music School in his hometown of Aberdeen. As well as the recorder quartet The Flautadors, with whom he has recorded four highly acclaimed albums of British repertoire spanning over 500 years, Ian is a member of the Burney Players and regularly performs concertos with the Adderbury Ensemble. He has performed as a soloist with many of Europe's period instrument orchestras and has performed, recorded and broadcast with groups including the The Sixteen, BBC Philharmonic Orchestra, The King's Consort and contemporary music specialists Kokoro. As a chamber musician, Ian has performed in many European festivals including the Edinburgh Festival and the BBC Proms. Outside classical music, Ian can be heard on the latest albums by the band Paris Motel and his live performance with Vashti Bunyan on the BBC's Jools Holland show featured on the show's 15 year anniversary DVD. In 2008 his career was the subject of a documentary for the Icelandic National Broadcasting Service and in 2010, Ian had the pleasure of teaching Janet Street-Porter for the Sky Arts programme First Love. In addition to his performing and teaching work Ian has worked as an adjudicator and examiner in the UK, France, Ireland and Hong Kong. He is a Fellow of the Higher Education Academy.
