Emma Murphy

On Saturday 16th November 2019
at
Ruishton Village Hall, Nr Taunton

Emma Murphy read music at Birmingham University and then graduated with a Masters degree in music from Trinity College of Music/University of London. She studied recorder with Philip Thorby and Ashley Solomon. Emma has performed and recorded with some of the UK's leading period groups, The King's Consort, Gabrieli Consort & Players and Ex Cathedra, as well as with the BBC Singers, BBC Symphony Orchestra and CBSO under Emmanuelle Haim and Giovanni Antonini. She plays in numerous chamber groups, including the renaissance group, Philomel and baroque trio, Da Camera and gives solo recitals with either lute, theorbo, harpsichord, marimba, guitar, viola d'amore or viol. As well as early music, Emma has a keen interest in contemporary music and has taken part in the acclaimed Park Lane Group New Year Series at the Southbank. Emma has also written and presented on BBC Radio 3's Early Music Show, and continues with her own research and writing. Emma directs and teaches on various workshops and courses in the UK and Ireland.
